

---

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by T Parsons - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

Chris believe it or not, but I see things in a little different way....its the way we are Lori

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Christopher - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

last lesson for today.....each person can have an opinion, it is not a right or wrong thing.....quiz on monday See the above example. Chris

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Christopher - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

I do see where you are coming from Chris believe it or not, but I see things in a little different way....its the way we are Actually, I don't think we're all that terribly far apart, ideologically. I do think that you're misreading the meaning of my posts sometimes, though. Chris

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

opinion about it can't be wrong! The facts about it can be right or wrong...the opinion of how you believe it should be is not Lori

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Darryl Harding - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

Christopher <hill...@nf.sympatico.ca.nospam wrote in message <snip And by the way, not everyone would rather be alive in a cell for the rest of their lives. Some criminals actually think of that as punishment and long to be on the outside, believe it or not. Then perhaps they should think about that before they COMMIT the crime...just a thought But hey if you don't beleive me, volunteer with a program like <http://writeaprisoner.com/>. Get a view from some of the actual lifers about how much of a free ride they think they've got, instead of just your own opinion. Again, if they do the crime they do the time....if it is soooo bad then they shouldn't do the crime...they need to grow up and take responsibility for their actions I never want to go to jail or be on death row so beside the obvious reasons of it being wrong and not in my nature, I do NOT do the crimes...if I did, then of course I wouldn't like it, and most likely bitch about it, but I would be stupid not to think there would be punishment for it. Expose yourself to some new info! Stop being afraid that looking something up and learning something new that might challenge your beliefs is a bad thing! <snip mu position is that those that commit capitl crimes should be dealt with by capitla punishment You say that but yet you refuse to try and prove me wrong that (1) it doesn't deter other murders Prove other than government surveys which say what suits them best that is doesn't deter other murders?...I know the government can do many sneaky things but I would like to think they still haven't learned how to get into EVERYONE's brain to know if they were deterred from doing capital crime...how do you measure something like that?...invite everyone that sees death penalties being carried out to come forward and admit it stopped them from committing murder?...good luck with that (2) it doesn't save taxpayers money it doesn't?? Hmmm I suck at my own money management but have been taught to pay off my bills so I no longer have to make payments, if you have finished paying for something and are not incurring anymore expenses on it, does that not mean you are saving the money you were once spending??? If a convicted criminal faces the death penalty instead of life in prison I would think that once it was carried out they would be no longer forking out the money for their provisions, therefore it could be saved for other uses. I believe your argument previously was something along the lines of death row prisoners still cost the taxpayers due to their use of appointed counsels for appeals etc...yes that would make perfect sense since criminals are entitled to those benefits, but appeals only go so far...yes they can be held up for years but the sentence does get carried out and the costs end...so the 'savings' may take time to show but they do eventually...I won't claim to know the costs of these appointed counsel, I know they are outrageous in a lot of cases, but so are the costs of medical/dental coverage, education, food, rent and all the other 'goodies' provided each and every day...so when reading those statistics think about how they can claim it saves no money.. just my interpretation...I guess I get for lack of a better word 'passionate' about that subject because I am one of the many people that try to work hard to get things necessary to survive and can't stand to see criminals gettin things they shouldn't deserve on those terms...they choose to give up their freedoms when they commit crimes...a lot of us got caught in the government cutbacks on jobs thru no choice of our own, and when we try hard to recover, face brick walls a lot of the time...I worked hard for 11 years at my job and took pride in it...it was not my decision to cut jobs...fact of life it seems these days and I know I just have to deal with it....when I turned to the programs in place that are supposed to be there to help, I faced more brick walls than I dreamed of...it is extremely frustrating as a single mother to be told sorry you only qualify for less than $700 a month for you and your child to pay just the basic necessities, which btw does not cover the rent, power, water, heat and food...then try everything in your power to upgrade yourself so you can again contribute to society only to be told your not eligible...it is frustrating as h*ll to know that for years you paid taxes that provided all the things you are trying to get with hard work to a person who committed a crime, yet you are not eligible! And knowing that there are people in worse situations than I am does not make the frustration any less...so yes, I do share the belief that criminals should not be given that 'free ride' when they CHOOSE to break the law...perhaps if instead of coping out and committing crimes they worked at finding a better solution, everyone's tax dollars could be spent on programs designed to help the people who aren't 'eligible', that WANT to contribute positively to society instead of sittin back and lettin someone else take care of them... (3) It actually results in more innocent deaths. Dealing with those who commit capital crimes by capital punishment doesn't solve any of these problems. I don't understand the use of the word innocent there...carrying out a death sentence on a convicted capital criminal is causing an 'innocent' death??...I don't consider a murderer 'innocent'....they choose to carry out their actions, they just don't want to face the consequences. The death of a convicted murderer is not an innocent death. If you are referring to people wrongly convicted dying then yes that is something I hate too...its is not the solution I know but just a thought...perhaps if the governments were not supporting so many capital criminals for the rest of their lives, the savings could be used to improve the system in some way...as well though I don't know a lot about these things, there are probably a few laws that need changing that would help truly innocent people prove it....Anyway I am gonna shup now...didn't mean to go on so long...I do see where you are coming from Chris believe it or not, but I see things in a little different way....its the way we are Lori

---

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Darryl Harding - 2010/01/08 02:27

Again, if you don't know the difference between mass/serial killers and the type of murderer most commonly incarcerated, look it up, speak to a psychologist, whatever. The more you keep pushing this point, the more uninformed you're making yourself look. Murder is a capital crime, in my opinion, a murder is a murder....if you take another life in cold blood then you should be subjected to capital punishment... that is it...end of story....you just simply cannot have it both ways....you advocate imprisonment for capital offenders, that is fine, it is your opinion, ...i have my opinion, i advocate capital punishment....you can beat this to death, chris...i will not change my mind simply because you want me to ...and that doesn't make me wrong....you gotta stop this, you will have a heart attack....we have differing opinions....simple as that....live with it..... And by the way, not everyone would rather be alive in a cell for the rest of their lives. Some criminals actually think of that as punishment and long to be on the outside, believe it or not. Given the choice of life or death, you think they want death??...i say good..... give it to them...in fact i say dont give them a choice...a capital offender should be subjected to capital punishment...that is my opinion chris, i stand by it just as you stand by your opinion that cold blooded murders should be given free room and board, free food, free clothing, free education, free medical and dental coverage and free vision care.....fine, pay for it with your dime....mine will go towards the public lethal injection for capital offenders..... remember chris, capital punishment means zero re-offending.....zero re-offending is a factual outcome of capital punishment Mike's had a great point with the number of hockey posts you've made saying that the numbers don't lie, and yet you won't even try to touch them in this thread, you just keep hiding behind Opinions can never be wrong . an opinion is just an opinion chris, it is not a right or wrong thing, i think that capital offenders that kill in cold blood should be dealt with by capital punishment.....that is my opinion....i stick by it....just lie your opin is...that cold blooded murders should be given free room and board, free food, free clothing, free education, free medical and dental coverage and free vision care....i just do not agree with your opinion, but that doesn't mean it is wrong...it is the way you feel, and i won't and am not trying to change your mind, you are trying to cram your opinion down my throat, and it simply will not work...so you just as well should move along....it simply will not happen.... And because no system is perfect, I'd rather see Randy Druken and Greg Parsons walking the streets than having been executed for a crime they didn't commit. The system is not perfect. And until we can say it is, innocent people risk being convicted. Ok, compare US states to US states - same nationality, same social problems, same scale. And consistently, the states without a death penalty have a lower crime rate. Simple fact. i don't care about the laws of the us...i care about our laws and my position is still the same as always, i think that capital offenders that kill in cold blood should be dealt with by capital punishment.....that is my opinion....i stick by it....just lie your opin is...that cold blooded murders should be given free room and board, free food, free clothing, free education, free medical and dental coverage and free vision care...i could care less about the united states..... You say that but yet you refuse to try and prove me wrong i am not saying that you are wrong, i am saying that i do not share your opinion as i have my own.....dont you get it??? hahaha an opinion is simply an opinion...it is neither right or wrong for anyone other than the person that has it....my opinion. yet again...is.....i think that capital offenders that kill in cold blood should be dealt with by capital punishment.....that is my opinion....i stick by it....just like your opinion is...that cold blooded murders should be given free room and board, free food, free clothing, free education, free medical and dental coverage and free vision care.... while we may not agree, neither of us is right or wrong.....you gotta stop trying to force your opinion on me...i accept that we have differing opinions, that is fine....have a great weekend Darryl

---

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by T Parsons - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

opinion on me...i accept that we have differing opinions, that is fine....have a great weekend Darryl

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Darryl Harding - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

last lesson for today.....each person can have an opinion, it is not a right or wrong thing.....quiz on monday Darryl

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

visit someone in a maximum security prison. Better yet, volunteer with a program like <http://writeaprisoner.com/> and see how they feel about the free ride they've earned. the thing is Chris...they dayum well CHOSE that ride...you act like I should feel sorry for them being in prison...I don't and never will....if you don't want to be there then do NOT do things you know will put you there....simple as that one last thing....FYI, I don't have to volunteer for any program or visit anyone in max security...I happened to have worked in a max security facility for a short time....it made me sick to listen to them whine about being there....it made me sick watching the things they were 'entitled' to and given.... - Hide quoted text -- Show quoted text - Chris

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

to be right and one wrong...they are views...opinions Lori

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

I too respect your views about this...I don't understand where one view has to be right and one wrong...they are views...opinions Lori

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

zero reoffending = MORE innocent people dying than without a death penalty. Funny that... zero -reoffending is a factual outcome of capital punishment, the rest is surmising.....while no system is perfect, i would rather support the death penalty , thank you very much Yes, because not executing them has proven repeatedly to be a bigger deterrant to murder than just executing them has. ??????? Yes Darryl, compare the US to Canada, or just US states nope ...different nationality, different socail problems on a different scale...you compare the two if you want...i , on the other hand do not.....mu position is that those that commit capitl crimes should be dealt with by capitla punishment Darryl

---

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Christopher - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

nope my opinion isjust my opinion, not right or wrong just a feeling i have about a topic....sorry but that is the way it is.... Then I have an opinion that you should give your booze away for free all weekend. Am I right or wrong? Chris

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Christopher - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

Bo0tiez: I've posted the information about the costs involved, as well as the web sites and books I've taken them from. If you don't like the way it sounds from me, then please look it up. I'm sorry you don't agree with the cost breakdown, but those are the facts - I'm not yanking them out of thin air, I'm repeating the research of others. As to your comment regarding statistics, I don't think you understand what's involved in conducting a study, or the rigorous process it goes through to be published in a reputable journal. Please take the time to learn about this, and then you can take the matter up with the academics who published the studies - I'm only repeating their data, which, both murder rates and financial, their research determined. There are to my knowledge, no published studies that have passed this rigorous process which support the role of deterrence or the saving of money with the Death Penalty. You are free, however to look it up for yourself. Chris

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

faulty information (which you've dodged when challenged on), or a simple motivation for revenge. That's beneath us all. then i will have to go on in life witous your respect....we all have crosses to bear.....**heavy sigh** I guess Chris does not respect a lot of people in this entire world because there are many many many that support capital punishment... dayum....and I so wanted his respect...maybe if I let him force his opinion on me.....nawwww I have a headache....) Lori

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

the way we are Lori

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

However, prisoners on Death Row are guaranteed a fixed number of appeals, (and are entitled even more than the fixed number if they can proove a problem with the preceeding trials!) thus court costs start to balloon. Those serving life in prison are not entitled to these appeals, and will only get them when and if the public defenders' case load becomes light enough for him to work on it. well I could be wrong but have always read that every person is entitled to appeal their cases....matter of fact think back to those who rightfully claimed they were wrongfully convicted....they appealed many times....Donald Marshall rings a bell to me...I am sure he did not pay for his own appeals....it is people like us on the outside that get told when the case loads are lighter they might consider helping us...I can quote an example from personal experience....I can barely afford for my son and I to live...yes I do get some assistance which I am thankful for and working hard to get off of...however when I had a situation arise when I needed legal aid, I was told they have suspended that service due to the heavy caseloads...try again in a year or two....well under normal circumstances it wouldn't be life threatening to me but when your child's welfare is in danger it is extremely frustrating..(long story I won't bore you with nor do I expect anyone to feel

---

... read more »

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

and dental coverage and free vision care.... while we may not agree, neither of us is right or wrong.....you gotta stop trying to force your opinion on me...i accept that we have differing opinions, that is fine....have a great weekend Darryl

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

nope my opinion is just my opinion, not right or wrong just a feeling i have about a topic....sorry but that is the way it is.... Then I have an opinion that you should give your booze away for free all weekend. Am I right or wrong? neither....just unrealistic (and dreaming) lol Lori

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by T Parsons - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

opinion is incorrect. nope my opinion is just my opinion, not right or wrong just a feeling i have about a topic....sorry but that is the way it is.... last lesson for today.....each person can have an opinion, it is not a right or wrong thing.....quiz on monday Darryl

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

involved in conducting a study, or the rigorous process it goes through to be published in a reputable journal. Please take the time to learn about this, and then you can take the matter up with the academics who published the studies - I'm only repeating their data, which, both murder rates and financial, their research determined. There are to my knowledge, no published studies that have passed this rigorous process which support the role of deterrence or the saving of money with the Death Penalty. You are free, however to look it up for yourself. Just as to my knowledge there have been reputable studies to prove it doesn't deter....I won't comment on the saving money ones because I have not looked for any...tho using my own common sense I still believe what I believe...you can't force me to change that...only I can choose that Lori

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Bo0tiez - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

a right or wrong thing.....quiz on monday Darryl

=====

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

---

Posted by T Parsons - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

your opinion is incorrect. nope my opinion is just my opinion, not right or wrong just a feeling i have about a topic....sorry but that is the way it is.... last lesson for today.....each person can have an opinion, it is not a right or wrong thing.....quiz on monday Darryl

---

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Christopher - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

Just as to my knowledge there have been reputable studies to prove it doesn't deter.... Either you're agreeing with me, or you misspoke. Either way, The studies show that it *Doesn't* deter, as you said in that sentence. If you have any evidence to the contrary other what you feel 'should' happen, present it to me. I'd love to read it. Chris

---

capital punishment reasons Death Penalty

Posted by Christopher - 2010/01/08 02:27

---

belief...having your own beliefs is what makes us unique as people... Agreed. I don't want you to like the same sports teams, clothes or music that I do. I just want people to stop assuming their feelings are enough about some issues - when people's lives hang in the balance, we need to look at
... read more »

---