
how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Slip Disc - 2010/01/08 13:28

points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. << Molly If racial hysteria is all around us it is because people are under a more consistent awareness of the fact that a serious threat exists. We can't ignore the reality of threat and attack because many or a majority are peaceful. I don't think I've participated in hate because I asked that question and I know that Justin's take on it was reactionary and emotionally charged, which I made clear in my replies. Of course you both stand on the same religious platform so I can understand your position. On Dec 16, 7:47 am, Molly <mollyb...@gmail.com wrote: I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. In the US, as generations go on, so does the racism, but the targeted race changes. During my grandparents time, the Irish were targets. Now, because Islam is not really a race, but a religion, anyone with medium dark skin is a target, which could be Eastern European, Indian, Middle Eastern parts of the globe and include, in truth, several different races and religions that include a particular physical look. It is our tendency to identify with groups, and feel ourselves against others and other groups that get in our way in significant but irrational ways. My step daughter dates a guy who immigrated from Armenia at the age of 7. He had someone call him an Arab with distain the other day. Last I checked, Saudi Arabia and the US were allies. Even a relatively innocuous statement from Gabby against me and for someone else will interrupt cohesion in the group. In terms of self, moving against is always looking away from self. It is human nature none the less. Wrap that up with a big coat of fear - fear of the future, fear of war, fear of attack, fear of economic disaster, fear that I won't be able to keep my stuff or have more stuff or hang on to my irrational fear and anger that allows me to feel in the absence of love, well, you are perfect fodder for herd mentality and those who prey on it. Even that is simply a reflection of changing humanity. It may be that what we are witnessing is really the death throes of racism in a global society. On Dec 16, 7:47 am, Pat <PatrickDHarring...@hotmail.com wrote: On 15 Dec, 23:23, Slip Disc <bug...@gmail.com wrote: Buzzer goes off, I'm not an Atheist, never claimed to be one, being non religious is not Atheism. What I believe God is may be different from others beliefs. Yes for sure I think the world would be much better without politics and many other things including wealth, an unnecessary state of being. Your interpretations are too micro. I'm not picking on religion per se but it is within the context of this thread, in case you haven't noticed, ie; Muslims um Religion um Islam um Religion um Jihad um Religion. {snicker!} Now my buzzer goes off. Which FORM of Islam? Not all Muslims are practicing, per se, and not all forms of Islam (for those who ARE practicing) are the same. Sunni vs. Shi'a is a big divide, for one, and ther eare four major 'schools of though' when it comes to deriving laws (Shari'a) from the Qur'an (scripture), ahadith (sayings of the Prophet) and Sunna (traditions of/about the Prophet). The you mention jihad. Which one? The lesser (more violent and outward fight) or the greater (the less violent and more inner struggle)? All these terms are not equal to one another. Much less are they even congruent. Have you looked at Islamic economics? If implemented well (and, of course, that's a huge caveat), there are no 'wealthy', as they would be charitable and share their excesses with those who have needs. Of course, this is one of the big areas where Islam and Western capitalism collide. Western capitalism allows for the stinking rich

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by dj Briscoe - 2010/01/08 13:28

We should also note, Molly, that racism in the past, as you pointed out against the Irish in your mothers time is not really relevant. This is not a racist issue, it's about attacks that kill people by a specific religious group. I'm sure the Irish were not setting off bombs, shooting people, joining the army and killing their fellow soldiers, nor did any other immigration group. Racism is entirely off base. On Dec 16, 1:17 pm, Slip Disc <bug...@gmail.com wrote: I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. << Molly If racial hysteria is all around us it is because people are under a more consistent awareness of the fact that a serious threat exists. We can't ignore the reality of threat and attack because many or a majority are peaceful. I don't think I've participated in hate because I asked that question and I know that Justin's take on it was reactionary and emotionally charged, which I made clear in my replies. Of course you both stand on the same religious platform so I can understand your position. On Dec 16, 7:47 am, Molly <mollyb...@gmail.com wrote: I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. In the US, as generations go on, so does the racism, but the targeted race changes. During my grandparents time, the Irish were targets. Now, because Islam is not really a race, but a religion, anyone with medium dark skin is a target, which could be Eastern European, Indian, Middle Eastern parts of the globe and include, in truth, several different races and religions that include a particular physical look. It is our tendency to identify with groups, and feel ourselves against others and other groups that get in our way in significant but irrational ways. My step daughter dates a guy who immigrated from Armenia at the age of 7. He had someone call him an Arab with distain the other day. Last I checked, Saudi Arabia and the US were allies. Even a relatively innocuous statement from Gabby against me and for someone else will interrupt cohesion in the group. In terms of self, moving against is always looking away from self. It is human nature none the less. Wrap that up with a big coat of fear - fear of the future, fear of war, fear of attack, fear of economic disaster, fear that I won't be able to keep my stuff or have more stuff or hang on to my irrational fear and anger that allows me to feel in the absence of love, well, you are perfect fodder for herd mentality and those who prey on it. Even that is simply a reflection of changing humanity. It may be that what we are witnessing is really the death throes of racism in a global society. On Dec 16, 7:47 am, Pat <PatrickDHarring...@hotmail.com wrote: On 15 Dec, 23:23, Slip Disc <bug...@gmail.com wrote: Buzzer goes off, I'm not an Atheist, never claimed to be one, being non religious is not Atheism. What I believe God is may be different from others beliefs. Yes for sure I think the world would be much better without politics and many other things including wealth, an unnecessary state of being. Your interpretations are too micro. I'm not picking on religion per se but it is within the context of this thread, in case you haven't noticed, ie; Muslims um Religion um Islam um Religion um Jihad um Religion. {snicker!} Now my buzzer goes off. Which FORM of Islam? Not all Muslims are practicing, per se, and not all forms of Islam (for those who ARE practicing) are the same. Sunni vs. Shi'a is a big divide, for one, and there are four major 'schools of thought' when it comes to deriving laws (Shari'a) from the Qur'an (scripture), ahadith (sayings of the Prophet) and Sunna (traditions of/about the Prophet). The you mention jihad. Which one? The lesser (more violent and outward fight) or the greater (the less violent and more inner struggle)? All these terms are not equal to one another. Much less are they even congruent. Have you looked at Islamic economics? If implemented well (and, of course, that's a huge caveat), there are no 'wealthy', as they would be charitable and share their excesses with those who have needs. Of course, this is one of the big areas where Islam and Western capitalism collide. Western capitalism allows for the stinking rich

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Molly - 2010/01/08 13:28

out against the Irish in your mothers time is not really relevant. This is not a racist issue, it's about attacks that kill people by a specific religious group. I'm sure the Irish were not setting off bombs, shooting people, joining the army and killing their fellow soldiers, nor did any other immigration group. Racism is entirely off base. On Dec 16, 1:17 pm, Slip Disc <bug...@gmail.com wrote: I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. << Molly If racial hysteria is all around us it is because people are under a more consistent awareness of the fact that a serious threat exists. We can't ignore the reality of threat and attack because many or a majority are peaceful. I don't think I've participated in hate because I asked that question and I know that Justin's take on it was reactionary and emotionally charged, which I made clear in my replies. Of course you both stand on the same religious platform so I can understand your position. On Dec 16, 7:47 am, Molly <mollyb...@gmail.com wrote: I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. In the US, as generations go on, so does the racism, but the targeted race changes. During my grandparents time, the Irish were targets. Now, because Islam is not really a race, but a religion, anyone with medium dark skin is a target, which could be Eastern European, Indian, Middle Eastern parts of the globe and include, in truth, several different races and religions that include a particular physical look. It is our tendency to identify with groups, and feel ourselves against others and other groups that get in our way in significant but irrational ways. My step daughter dates a guy who immigrated from Armenia at the age of 7. He had someone call him an Arab with distain the other day. Last I checked, Saudi Arabia and the US were allies. Even a relatively innocuous statement from Gabby against me and for someone else will interrupt cohesion in the group. In terms of self, moving against is always looking away from self. It is human nature none the less. Wrap that up with a big coat of fear - fear of the future, fear of war, fear of attack, fear of economic disaster, fear that I won't be able to keep my stuff or have more stuff or hang on to my irrational fear and anger that allows me to feel in the absence of love, well, you are perfect fodder for herd mentality and those who prey on it. Even that is simply a reflection of changing humanity. It may be that what we are witnessing is really the death throes of racism in a global society. On Dec 16, 7:47 am, Pat <PatrickDHarring...@hotmail.com wrote: On 15 Dec, 23:23, Slip Disc <bug...@gmail.com wrote: Buzzer goes off, I'm not an Atheist, never claimed to be one, being non religious is not Atheism. What I believe God is may be different from others beliefs. Yes for sure I think the world would be much better without politics and many other things including wealth, an unnecessary state of being. Your interpretations are too micro. I'm not picking on religion per se but it is within the context of this thread, in case you haven't noticed, ie; Muslims um Religion um Islam um Religion um Jihad um Religion. {snicker!} Now my buzzer goes off. Which FORM of Islam? Not all Muslims are practicing, per se, and not all forms of Islam (for those who ARE practicing) are the same. Sunni vs. Shi'a is a big divide, for one, and there are four major 'schools of thought' when it comes to deriving laws (Shari'a) from the Qur'an (scripture), ahadith (sayings of the Prophet) and Sunna (traditions of/about the Prophet). The you mention jihad. Which one? The lesser (more violent and outward fight) or the greater (the less violent and more inner struggle)? All these terms are not equal to one another. Much less are they even congruent. Have you looked at Islamic economics? If implemented well (and, of course, that's a huge caveat), there are no 'wealthy', as they would be charitable and share their excesses with those who have needs. Of course, this is one of the big areas where Islam and Western capitalism collide. Western capitalism allows for the stinking rich

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by ornamentalmind - 2010/01/08 13:28

current definition: a class or kind of individuals with common characteristics, interests, appearance, or habits as if derived from a common ancestor. Racism in the US is defined by targeted group, and currently that group is Muslim. Clint Eastwood's movie Gran Torino did a good job of showing the problem in Dearborn, MI, although the movie portrayed the group as a group from Southeast Asia that immigrated from several different countries. In truth, the group in Dearborn that is currently the target of racial hostility is Muslim, and all Middle Eastern immigrants or those who look like them are carried along. But you probably know that. On Dec 16, 3:24 pm, Slip Disc <bug...@gmail.com> wrote: We should also note, Molly, that racism in the past, as you pointed out against the Irish in your mothers time is not really relevant. This is not a racist issue, it's about attacks that kill people by a specific religious group. I'm sure the Irish were not setting off bombs, shooting people, joining the army and killing their fellow soldiers, nor did any other immigration group. Racism is entirely off base. On Dec 16, 1:17 pm, Slip Disc <bug...@gmail.com> wrote: I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. << Molly If racial hysteria is all around us it is because people are under a more consistent awareness of the fact that a serious threat exists. We can't ignore the reality of threat and attack because many or a majority are peaceful. I don't think I've participated in hate because I asked that question and I know that Justin's take on it was reactionary and emotionally charged, which I made clear in my replies. Of course you both stand on the same religious platform so I can understand your position. On Dec 16, 7:47 am, Molly <mollyb...@gmail.com> wrote: I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. In the US, as generations go on, so does the racism, but the targeted race changes. During my grandparents time, the Irish were targets. Now, because Islam is not really a race, but a religion, anyone with medium dark skin is a target, which could be Eastern European, Indian, Middle Eastern parts of the globe and include, in truth, several different races and religions that include a particular physical look. It is our tendency to identify with groups, and feel ourselves against others and other groups that get in our way in significant but irrational ways. My step daughter dates a guy who immigrated from Armenia at the age of 7. He had someone call him an Arab with disdain the other day. Last I checked, Saudi Arabia and the US were allies. Even a relatively innocuous statement from Gabby against me and for someone else will interrupt cohesion in the group. In terms of self, moving against is always looking away from self. It is human nature none the less. Wrap that up with a big coat of fear - fear of the future, fear of war, fear of attack, fear of economic disaster, fear that I won't be able to keep my stuff or have more stuff or hang on to my irrational fear and anger that allows me to feel in the absence of love, well, you are perfect fodder for herd mentality and those who prey on it. Even that is simply a reflection of changing humanity. It may be that what we are witnessing is really the death throes of racism in a global society. On Dec 16, 7:47 am, Pat <PatrickDHarring...@hotmail.com> wrote: On 15 Dec, 23:23, Slip Disc <bug...@gmail.com> wrote: Buzzer goes off, I'm not an Atheist, never claimed to be one, being non religious is not Atheism. What I believe God is may be different from others beliefs. Yes for sure I think the world would be much better without politics and many other things including wealth, an unnecessary state of being. Your interpretations are too micro. I'm not picking on religion per se but it is within the context of this thread, in case you haven't noticed, ie; Muslims um Religion um Islam um Religion um Jihad um Religion. {snicker!} Now my buzzer goes off. Which FORM of Islam? Not all Muslims are practicing, per se, and not all forms of Islam (for those who ARE practicing) are the same. Sunni vs. Shi'a is a big divide, for one, and there are four major 'schools of thought' when it comes to deriving laws (Shari'a) from the Qur'an (scripture), ahadith (sayings of the Prophet) and Sunna (traditions of/about the Prophet). The you mention jihad. Which one? The lesser (more violent and outward fight) or the greater (the less violent and more inner struggle)? All these terms are not equal to one another. Much less are they even congruent. Have you looked at Islamic economics? If implemented well (and, of course, that's a huge caveat), there are no 'wealthy', as they would be charitable and share their excesses with those who have needs. Of course, this is one of the big areas where Islam and Western capitalism collide. Western capitalism allows for the stinking rich

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Slip Disc - 2010/01/08 13:28

Hah I guess then if that is the way you want to go, the same can be
... read more »

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Buzzer goes off, I'm not an Atheist, never claimed to be one, being non religious is not Atheism. What I believe God is may be different from others beliefs. Yes for sure I think the world would be much better without politics and many other things including wealth, an unnecessary state of being. Your interpretations are too micro. I'm not picking on religion per se but it is within the context of this thread, in case you haven't noticed, ie; Muslims um Religion um Islam um Religion um Jihad um Religion.
... read more »

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Lee - 2010/01/08 13:28

You make is sound so relaxing, Pat. I have to add that I do not know any Muslims and have never met any Muslims which may be one of the reasons for my apprehensions. However, it is not without any basis, ie; the Muslim Major Hasan seemed by ALL accounts to be one of the peace loving Muslim persons of whom you speak. Didn't people know him as such, wasn't he in the US Army? Didn't he shoot and kill US Soldiers? Was he a fundamentalist, a radical terrorist? Are we being duped is the real question, are you? Although I don't know Major Hasan, I can 'guess' (which is hardly good) that there were conflicts of interest going on in his mind. Muslims consider one another brothers

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Pat - 2010/01/08 13:28

Buzzer goes off, I'm not an Atheist, never claimed to be one, being non religious is not Atheism. What I believe God is may be different from others beliefs. Yes for sure I think the world would be much better without politics and many other things including wealth, an unnecessary state of being. Your interpretations are too micro. I'm not picking on religion per se but it is within the context of this thread, in case you haven't noticed, ie; Muslims um Religion um Islam um Religion um Jihad um Religion. {snicker!} Now my buzzer goes off. Which FORM of Islam? Not all Muslims are practicing, per se, and not all forms of Islam (for those who ARE practicing) are the same. Sunni vs. Shi'a is a big divide, for one, and ther eare four major 'schools of though' when it comes to deriving laws (Shari'a) from the Qur'an
... read more »

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Lee - 2010/01/08 13:28

I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. In the US, as generations go on, so does the racism, but the targeted race changes. During my grandparents time, the Irish were targets. Now, because Islam is not really a race, but a religion, anyone with medium dark skin is a target, which could be Eastern European, Indian, Middle Eastern parts of the globe and include, in truth, several different races and religions that include a particular physical look. It is our tendency to identify with groups, and feel ourselves against others and other groups that get in our way in significant but irrational ways. My step daughter dates a guy who immigrated from Armenia at the age of 7. He had someone call him an Arab with distain the other day. Last I checked, Saudi Arabia and the US were allies. Even a relatively innocuous statement from Gabby against me and for someone else will interrupt cohesion in the group. In terms of self, moving against is always looking away from self. It is human nature none the less. Wrap that up with a big coat of fear - fear of the future, fear of war, fear of attack, fear of economic disaster, fear that I won't be able to keep my stuff or have more stuff or hang on to my irrational fear and anger that allows me to feel in the absence of love, well, you are perfect fodder for herd mentality and those who prey on it. Even that is simply a
... read more »

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Slip Disc - 2010/01/08 13:28

I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. In the US, as generations go on, so does the racism, but the targeted race changes. During my grandparents time, the Irish were targets. Now, because Islam is not really a race, but a ... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Molly - 2010/01/08 13:28

Buzzer goes off, I'm not an Atheist, never claimed to be one, being non religious is not Atheism. What I believe God is may be different from others beliefs. Yes for sure I think the world would be much better without politics and many other things including wealth, an unnecessary state of being. Your interpretations are too micro. I'm not picking on religion per se but it is within the context of this thread, in case you haven't ... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by ornamentalmind - 2010/01/08 13:28

... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by dj Briscoe - 2010/01/08 13:28

I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed ... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by dj Briscoe - 2010/01/08 13:28

I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. << Molly If racial hysteria is all around us it is because people are under a more consistent awareness of the fact that a serious threat exists. We can't ignore the reality of threat and attack ... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Vamadevananda - 2010/01/08 13:28

I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. << Molly If racial hysteria is all around us it is because people are under a more consistent ... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by ornamentalmind - 2010/01/08 13:28

We should also note, Molly, that racism in the past, as you pointed out against the Irish in your mothers time is not really relevant. This is
... read more »

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by dj Briscoe - 2010/01/08 13:28

I don't think it is off base at all. We are talking about race in the current definition: a class or kind of individuals with common characteristics,
... read more »

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by dj Briscoe - 2010/01/08 13:28

Well your turning the hostility around, reversing the direction of the hostility. If anything the hostility is originating from Islam and we seem to be the targets. My intended focus was towards the incidences that have been reported by reputable sources not some tabloid rag. I think that a majority of people globally feel threatened by the increase in Muslim populations, especially considering all the problems arising from their presence. I didn't think much of it when they had rioting in Paris several years back but now I see a continuing trend towards more serious violent acts aimed at killing innocent people, as per the examples I have cited. How many more Hasans are hiding behind the shroud of peace and how many more teenagers are out their waiting for the opportunity to strike? We are a multi cultural country but the only culture that seems to be causing concern is that of the Muslims. Pat has expended much energy on pointing out the various faiths within faiths which actually validates my point that religion segments societies and has been throughout history the root of many wars and atrocities still to this day. I'm not worried about Irish people nor German, Italian, Polish, French and dozens of others. I'm worried about some Hasan copy cat opening fire on a group of people or a group of Muslim teenagers committing some heinous act that will take the lives of innocent people. As I pointed out to Justin, this is not something that just popped up out of nowhere, but has been happening for quite sometime and is still happening but is getting more frequent and insidious in nature. I don't think God intended for us to come up with a slew of religious figures to believe in nor multi-Gods to worship. I don't even know if we are supposed to worship anything. Why can't we just live and enjoy? I do own the movie Gran Torino and I don't think that it applies to what I talking about. I think it is natural for people to develop fear of a specific race/culture when that race/culture is out and about killing people, its no different than the fear arising from a serial killer on the loose, everyone becomes suspect. Your stance reminds me of the political correctness position taken on racial profiling and as a result my 87 year old mother had to undergo scrutiny at the airport, removing her jacket for inspection. Its not age old grannies that are hijacking planes and carrying out suicide missions but it is the _____ people. Simply fill in the blank for a reality check. Picture this, your are on an elevator, the other passengers consist of two old ladies, a mom holding a baby and three children aged 3, 5 and 7, an old man with a cane and two men in the corner each with an attache case and speaking any Islamic language. Ok, who are you worried about? Me? I wouldn't even get on the elevator if I heard them talking. Sorry but that is that way it is and it is getting worse. This is a real situation, but I didn't cause it, they did. Your worry about people speaking an Islamic language speaks volumes. English is an Islamic language. That is, there are Muslims who speak it. Let me put it in Christian speak for you (English is also a Christian language!!): And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? That quote, of Jesus, was not originally spoken in English, obviously. The point is that when you said Islamic language, I really don't think you have any ground to stand on. Is that Indonesian, Persian, Arabic, Urdu, Pashtun, Albanian, what? There is no single language that is Islamic. The Qur'an was written in Arabic, but would you know, by listening, the difference between two native Arabic speakers and two native Aramaic speakers? Either could be Christian. The statement was blatantly racist, borne out of fear, cast over you by a right-wing, neo-con, fundamentalist Christian media ploy, and you've fallen straight into the mindset they want you to have. Be fearful of the OTHER fundamentalists, not us 'good Christian fundamentalists'. Do you think 9-11 was done as a pre-emptive strike? It was retaliation for American foreign policy!! Bad form, it's true, but it was a REACTION
... read more »

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by dj Briscoe - 2010/01/08 13:28

Well your turning the hostility around, reversing the direction of the hostility. If anything the hostility is originating from Islam and we seem to be the targets. My intended focus was towards the incidences that have been reported by reputable sources not some tabloid rag. I think that a majority of people globally feel threatened by the increase in Muslim populations, especially considering all the problems arising from their presence. I didn't think much of it when they had rioting in Paris several years back but now I see a continuing trend towards more serious violent acts aimed at killing innocent people, as per the examples I have cited. How many more Hasans are hiding behind the shroud of peace and how many more teenagers are out their waiting for the opportunity to strike? We are a multi cultural country but the only culture that seems to be causing concern is that of the Muslims. Pat has expended much energy on pointing out the various faiths within faiths which actually validates my point that religion segments societies and has been throughout history the root of many wars and atrocities still to this day. I'm not worried about Irish people nor German, Italian, Polish, French and dozens of others. I'm worried about some Hasan copy cat opening fire on a group of people or a group of Muslim teenagers committing some heinous act that will take the lives of innocent people. As I pointed out to Justin, this is not something that just popped up out of nowhere, but has been happening for quite sometime and is still happening but is getting more frequent and insidious in nature. I don't think God intended for us to come up with a slew of religious figures to believe in nor multi-Gods to worship. I don't even know if we are supposed to worship anything. Why can't we just live and enjoy? I do own the movie Gran Torino and I don't think that it applies to what I talking about. I think it is natural for people to develop fear of a specific race/culture when that race/culture is out and about killing people, its no different than the fear arising from a serial killer on the loose, everyone becomes suspect. Your stance reminds me of the political correctness position taken on racial profiling and as a result my 87 year old mother had to undergo scrutiny at the airport, removing her jacket for inspection. Its not age old grannies that are hijacking planes and carrying out suicide missions but it is the _____ people. Simply fill in the blank for a reality check. Picture this, your are on an elevator, the other passengers consist of two old ladies, a mom holding a baby and three children aged 3, 5 and 7, an old man with a cane and two men in the corner each with an attache case and speaking any Islamic language. Ok, who are you worried about? Me? I wouldn't even get on the elevator if I heard them talking. Sorry but that is that way it is and it is getting worse. This is a real situation, but I didn't cause it, they did. Your worry about people speaking an Islamic language speaks volumes. English is an Islamic language. That is, there are Muslims who speak it. Let me put it in Christian speak for you (English is also a Christian language!!): And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? That quote, of Jesus, was not originally spoken in English, obviously. The point is that when you said Islamic language, I really don't think you have any ground to stand on. Is that Indonesian, Persian, Arabic, Urdu, Pashtun, Albanian, what? There is no single language that is Islamic. The Qur'an was written in Arabic, but would you know, by listening, the difference between two native Arabic speakers and two native Aramaic speakers? Either could be Christian. The statement was blatantly racist, borne out of fear, cast over you by a right-wing, neo-con, fundamentalist Christian media ploy, and you've fallen

... read more »

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Vamadevananda - 2010/01/08 13:28

Well your turning the hostility around, reversing the direction of the hostility. If anything the hostility is originating from Islam and we seem to be the targets. My intended focus was towards the incidences that have been reported by reputable sources not some tabloid rag. I think that a majority of people globally feel threatened by the increase in Muslim populations, especially considering all the problems arising from their presence. I didn't think much of it when they had rioting in Paris several years back but now I see a continuing trend towards more serious violent acts aimed at killing innocent people, as per the examples I have cited. How many more Hasans are hiding behind the shroud of peace and how many more teenagers are out their waiting for the opportunity to strike? We are a multi cultural country but the only culture that seems to be causing concern is that of the Muslims. Pat has expended much energy on pointing out the various faiths within faiths which actually validates my point that religion segments societies and has been throughout history the root of many wars and atrocities still to this day. I'm not worried about Irish people nor German, Italian, Polish, French and dozens of others. I'm worried about some Hasan copy cat opening fire on a group of people or a group of Muslim teenagers committing some heinous act that will take the lives of innocent people. As I pointed out to Justin, this is not something that just popped up out of nowhere, but has been happening for quite sometime and is still happening but is getting more frequent and insidious in nature. I don't think God intended for us to come up with a slew of religious figures to believe in nor multi-Gods to worship. I don't even know if we are supposed to worship anything. Why can't we just live and enjoy? I do own the movie Gran Torino and I don't think that it applies to what I talking about. I think it is natural for people to develop fear of a specific race/culture when that race/culture is out and about killing people, its no different than the fear arising from a serial killer on the loose, everyone becomes suspect. Your stance reminds me of the political correctness position taken on racial profiling and as a result my 87 year old mother had to undergo scrutiny at the airport, removing her jacket for inspection. Its not age old grannies that are hijacking planes and carrying out suicide missions but it is the _____ people. Simply fill in the blank for a reality check. Picture this, your are on an elevator, the other passengers consist of two old ladies, a mom holding a baby and three children aged 3, 5 and 7, an old man with a cane and two men in the corner each with an attache case and speaking any Islamic language. Ok, who are you worried about? Me? I wouldn't even get on the elevator if I heard them talking. Sorry but that is that way it is and it is getting worse. This is a real situation, but I didn't cause it, they did. Your worry about people speaking an Islamic language speaks volumes. English is an Islamic language. That is, there are Muslims who speak it. Let me put it in Christian speak for you (English is also a Christian language!!): And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? That quote, of Jesus, was not originally spoken in English, obviously. The point is that when you said Islamic language , I really don't think you have any ground to stand on.

... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Lee - 2010/01/08 13:28

I think that Justin's read on Slips question was accurate, in that it points to the racial hysteria that is now all around us, inflamed by mainstream media and ignorance. << Molly If racial hysteria is all around us it is because people are under a more consistent awareness of the fact that a serious threat exists. We can't ignore the reality of threat and attack because many or a

... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Lee - 2010/01/08 13:28

I don't think it is off base at all. We are talking about race in the current definition: a class or kind of individuals with common characteristics, interests, appearance, or habits as if derived from a common ancestor. Racism in the US is defined by targeted group, and currently that group is Muslim. Clint Eastwood's movie Gran Torino did a good job of showing the problem in Dearborn, MI, although the movie portrayed the group as a group from Southeast Asia that immigrated from several different countries. In truth, the group in Dearborn that is currently the target of racial hostility is Muslim, and all Middle Eastern immigrants or those who look like them are

... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Lee - 2010/01/08 13:28

Well your turning the hostility around, reversing the direction of the hostility. If anything the hostility is originating from Islam and we seem to be the targets. My intended focus was towards the incidences that have been reported by reputable sources not some tabloid rag. I think that a majority of people globally feel threatened by the increase in Muslim populations, especially considering all the problems arising from their presence. I didn't think much of it when they had rioting in Paris several years back but now I see a continuing trend towards more serious violent acts aimed at killing innocent people, as per the examples I have cited. How many more Hasans are hiding behind the shroud of peace and how many more teenagers are out their waiting for the opportunity to strike? We are a multi cultural country but the only culture that seems to be causing concern is that of the Muslims. Pat has expended much energy on pointing out the various faiths within faiths which actually validates my point that religion segments societies and has been throughout history the root of many wars and atrocities still to this day. I'm not worried about Irish people nor German, Italian, Polish, French and dozens of others. I'm worried about some Hasan copy cat opening fire on a group of people or a group of Muslim teenagers committing some heinous act that will take the lives of innocent people. As I pointed out to Justin, this is not something that just popped up out of nowhere, but has been happening for quite sometime and is still happening but is getting more frequent and insidious in nature. I don't think God intended for us to come up with a slew of religious figures to believe in nor multi-Gods to worship. I don't even know if we are supposed to worship anything. Why can't we just live and enjoy? I do own the movie Gran Torino and I don't think that it applies to what I talking about. I think it is natural for people to develop fear of a specific race/culture when that race/culture is out and about killing people, its no different than the fear arising from a serial killer on the loose, everyone becomes suspect. Your stance reminds me of the political correctness position taken on racial profiling and as a result my 87 year old mother had to undergo scrutiny at the airport, removing her jacket for inspection. Its not age old grannies that are hijacking planes and carrying out suicide missions but it is the _____ people. Simply fill in the blank for a reality check. Picture this, your are on an elevator, the other passengers consist of two old ladies, a mom holding a baby and three children aged 3, 5 and 7, an old man with a cane and two men in the corner each with an attache case and speaking any Islamic language. Ok, who are you worried about? Me? I wouldn't even get on the elevator if I heard them talking. Sorry but that is that way it is and it is getting worse. This is a real situation, but I didn't cause it, they did. Your worry about people speaking an Islamic language speaks volumes. English is an Islamic language. That is, there are Muslims who speak it. Let me put it in Christian speak for you (English is also a Christian language!!): And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? That quote, of Jesus, was not originally spoken in English, obviously. The point is that when you said Islamic language, I really don't think you have any ground to stand on. Is that Indonesian, Persian, Arabic, Urdu, Pashtun, Albanian, what? There is no single language that is Islamic. The Qur'an was written in Arabic, but would you know, by listening, the difference between two native Arabic speakers and two native Aramaic speakers? Either could be Christian. The statement was blatantly racist, borne out of fear, cast over you by a right-wing, neo-con, fundamentalist Christian

... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by Pat - 2010/01/08 13:28

Well your turning the hostility around, reversing the direction of the hostility. If anything the hostility is originating from Islam and we seem to be the targets. My intended focus was towards the incidences that have been reported by reputable sources not some tabloid rag. I think that a majority of people globally feel threatened by the increase in Muslim populations, especially considering all the problems arising from their presence. I didn't think much of it when they had rioting in Paris several years back but now I see a continuing trend towards more serious violent acts aimed at killing innocent people, as per the examples I have cited. How many more Hasans are hiding behind the shroud of peace and how many more teenagers are out their waiting for the opportunity to strike? We are a multi cultural country but the only culture that seems to be causing concern is that of the Muslims. Pat has expended much energy on pointing out the various faiths within faiths which actually validates my point that religion segments societies and has been throughout history the root of many wars and atrocities still to this day. I'm not worried about Irish people nor German, Italian, Polish, French and dozens of others. I'm worried about some Hasan copy cat opening fire on a group of people or a group of Muslim teenagers committing some heinous act that will

... read more »

=====

how many serial killers Are Muslims Making You Nervous?

Posted by dj Briscoe - 2010/01/08 13:28

Well your turning the hostility around, reversing the direction of the hostility. If anything the hostility is originating from Islam and we seem to be the targets. My intended focus was towards the incidences that have been reported by reputable sources not some tabloid rag. I think that a majority of people globally feel threatened by the increase in Muslim populations, especially considering all the problems arising from their presence. I didn't think much of it when they had rioting in Paris several years back but now I see a continuing trend towards more serious violent acts aimed at killing innocent people, as per the examples I have cited. How many more Hasans are hiding behind the shroud of peace and how many more teenagers are out their waiting for the opportunity to strike? We are a multi cultural country but the only culture that seems to be causing concern is that of the Muslims. Pat has expended much energy on pointing out the various faiths within faiths which

... read more »

=====

